TUESDAY, JAN 22, 1878.

If the 92-cent men want to go the whole length in scaling down the money standard, why not demand the Continental paper dollar, which sank clear out of sight? That was the dollar of the grand daddies.—Indianapolis Journal.

It is noticeable that the Manchester Guardian, usually well informed as to the under-currents of European politics, holds to the opinion that the conditions of peace have already been settled at Berlin, St. Petersburg and Vienna.

A Pensacola, (Fla.) gentleman has growing in his garden a tea plant which he brought from China some fifteen years ago. It has remained out of doors all that time, has attained a height of twelve or fifteen feet and is as hardy as the ordinary growth in China.

Lieutenant Bullis, the hero of the Mexican raids, is a man of thirty, with jetty hair and mustache, about five feet eight inches in height and a model of physical strength and endurance. He has served on the Texas frontier for the last eleven years, and is now in command of an effective company of Scalpole scouts.

It is stated that as many as twenty graduates of the last class at Harvard College would have failed in their examination for the degree of A. B. had they not purchased the examination papers of the printer. For the past three years wealthy students have been in the habit of buying papers. On the discovery of this corruption the printer was discharged.

The largest man-of-war in the world is now building at Castellamare, Italy, and is to be called the "Italia." Its length is 550 feet, breadth of beam 66, displacement, 14,000 tons, and the weight of its unarmored hull 5600 tons. Its bottom is strengthened by bulkheads, which form 33 water-tight compartments, thus making it proof against destruction by torpedoes.

The venerable Thomas Lord did not appear in New York Saturday to defend himself against the lunacy proceedings instituted by his sons, so the case necessarily went over. It is now given out that if the father and his sagacious little do not soon put in an obliging appearance, and stand trial as such confirmed lunatics should, the sons will institute proceedings to administer upon his estate as though he were dead.

Blue Jaws Williams is what may properly be called a hotel invalid. After he had concluded his holiday meal recently at a Chickamauga hotel, one colored waiter remarked to another "des tell yer, Jeames, dat Injunnn man ain't no sick alligator. Wen he fas done set down to de table I axed him s would he see de menu, an he jus look at me an' say, 'No, I don't mean nobody.' Den he shout up, 'Boy, fetch me some hog an' hominy.' an' I fetch 'im fo' plates ob dat, an' wen he done finish up an' stop, dat plate he was eatin' off'n didn't want no sourin'. Yes Mar me!"

Signs multiply that the people of the West have been misrepresented on the silver question. In Indianapolis, the very centre of all inflation parties, careful investigation shows an overwhelming portion of the better elements of the city to be against unlimited silver. The Journal, of that city, has recently sent reporters among the leading business men, to find out their attitude, and the result has been the discovering of only here and there a man in favor of anything but honest money. There was found to be an almost entire unanimity of sentiment in favor of a dollar worth 100 cents, based on a gold standard.

It is told that Daniel Webster once gave a lecture before the New York Historical Society at Niblo's saloon, which the secretary and friend, Mr Abbott, had so filled with classical allusions that he was somewhat annoyed about it. When at dinner on the day of its delivery, he was questioned as to what he proposed to say, and replied, "I am going to be excessively learned and classical, and shall talk about the older citizens of Greece. When I make my appearance on Broadway to-morrow, people will accost me thus 'Good morning, Mr. Webster. Recently from Greece, I understand; how did you leave Mr Pericles and Mr. Aristophanes?'"

When the Bristow movement has drifted almost into the domain of ancient history in politics, the ex-Secretary reappears in Boston with a speech which cannot be regarded otherwise than as the manifesto of a Presidential candidate. It opens with an allusion to the vote which Massachusetts gave him in the Cincinnati Convention, and closes with an appeal to the "friends of reform" to maintain their position. The speech is all that could be desired in its discussion of the currency question. In other respects, as the official platform of the Bristow party, if such a thing still exists, it is interesting, but cannot be considered important.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Worcester Spy says of George H. Pendleton, just elected Senator from Ohio, that "he was one of the worst and most virulent disunionists while the Union was in danger; he was discreditably connected with the prosecution of doubtful claims against the United States, his personal habits when in Congress before were not above reproach; and he has advocated the wildest measures of inflation, and in remarks lately made to influence the Democrats of the Legislature in his favor he declared himself in favor of the full restoration of the dollar of the fathers as proposed in the Bland bill, the indefinite postponement of resumption, the substitution of greenbacks for national banknotes, and a great increase in the volume of irredeemable paper money."

Some remarks by General Todleben on the fall of Plevna, reported in the Pall Mall Gazette, must be of value to all military students and others who take an interest in the science of warfare. General Todleben is perhaps next to Von Moltke, the most scientific soldier of the age. He made the splendid defence of Sebastopol, after the Grand Dukes had marched away with their armies declaring it untenable, and it was not until he was called to the scene of action in the present war that the disasters to the Russian armies ceased and their victories began. Skobeleff shattered his regiments to pieces in the attempt to take redoubts, which were defended with a courage as desperate as his own; but Todleben surrounded Plevna with a wall of circumvallation and compelled the Turkish commander to become the assailant with all the advantages of defence upon his own side. It was science and knowledge against stubborn daring, and science won, of course.

A New York despatch says: The mystery in connection with the scuttled schooner E. H. Pray, Capt. Clark, has been cleared away and all the stolen cargo recovered. Mr. Chalmers, the broker who shipped the cargo of the Pray, has filed a bond in $30,000, and the cargo will be taken from the schooner Guide and forwarded to Baltimore, its original destination. The giant powder, which constituted part of the cargo, is to be used in the new Baltimore tunnel, and if it does not arrive by Tuesday about 1500 men will be thrown out of work. Fifty 100 barrels of salt fish which were purchased by Meyer of Hoboken have been replevined and delivered to the owner, Richard P. Currie, under bonds. William May, the man who was found on the Guide guarding the stolen cargo, was taken Saturday before United States Commissioner Betts for examination. He is not believed to be the "poor old tramp" which he represented himself to be, but is supposed to have been a sailor all or a greater part of his life. May looks like anything but a pirate. He is weak-looking, mentally and physically. He was dressed Saturday in a pair of trousers and a worn-out blister, and looked the picture of dilapidation.

Dr. Prime says that ten years ago there were probably not ten collectors of pottery and porcelain in the United States, while to-day there are perhaps ten thousand. The utilitarian will be tempted to ask if we were not better off with the ten than we are with the ten thousand, but the pottery collectors, if nobody else will say so, it is not easy to measure the beneficent influence of cultivation of taste, any more than it is to reckon the pecuniary value of a heavy dew in a season of drought. Both benefits will be seen in due time, and we shall acknowledge them. It is a mania, however, that has its deformities, the most palpable of which just now is the rage for sticking tawdry pictures on the old jars, drain-tiles, bean-pots and blacking-bottles, and ornamenting our houses with them. Not that pretty and artistic pictures may not be stuck on, as well as painted on. But when the whole aim and object seems to be to stick on just as many pictures as the pottery will hold, without regard to color, form or idea, the result is simply monstrous. We shall get over this nonsense in good time—let us hope very soon.

The Committee on Banking and Currency asks to be allowed to investigate the amount of coin in the country available for purposes of resumption. Let the committee ascertain what the proposition means. The amount of coin in the Treasury is known every day, and if the committee needs a more exact statement than is afforded by the daily report, it can be had by passing a resolution calling upon the Secretary for the amount in the banks is also easily ascertainable. The committee therefore needs no special authority to find out the amount of what is called the visible stock of gold and the only purpose of the resolution either to try to investigate the amount of the invisible stock, or to ask people for their guesses as to what that stock may be. The questions to speculate upon are such a fool's errand that we sincerely hope the committee would be spared the time and the pains.—Boston Advertiser.

A locomotive crushed out a good deal of human experience when it ran over and killed D. H. Kotwitz at Kansas City, Mo., the other day. He served with distinction in the Crimean as Captain of the Imperial Guard, and afterward with the Grand Duke Michael in the Caucasus. Where he was concerned in a plot to aid the escape of his Colonel, who was sentenced to banishment. With several others he was sentenced to death, but got off with reduction to the ranks for life in a Cossack regiment. Deserting, he escaped to Turkey, and being supplied with money by his friends, spent some years in travel. From Prussia he appealed for pardon, but his extradition was demanded, whereupon he fled to America, and being unfortunate in business and losing his money, he ended his life by throwing himself beneath the engine's wheels.

Two of the Massachusetts State detectives, in order to learn the character, habits and purposes of the tramps, turned tramp themselves last July and freely mingled with a large number of them for twenty days. In their report they say: "During all the time we were engaged in tramping we made it our business, at the suggestion of the chief detective, to ascertain whether it was the lack of employment that caused these people to become wanderers and vagrants. Of the entire number with whom we conversed we found but two who did not scout the idea of going to work for the purpose of earning an honest livelihood; and we very much doubt if these two were real, to engage in any laborious employment."

A very sad tragedy was enacted at Newburyport, Mass., on Sunday, which should prove an enduring reminder to parents of the danger and wickedness of leaving firearms where children can get possession of them. Four children were playing together, when the eldest, only twelve years of age, ordered his companions, three little girls, to go home. They did not obey him, and he entered his father's house, brought out an old Queen's Arms musket, loaded with buckshot, and firing it he instantly killed a little girl six years old and wounded the other two, one of them seriously. The boy's claim that he did not know the musket was loaded, and only sought to intimidate the other children.

Mr. N. E. Alloway of Nashville, Tenn., who has made a particular study of cotton growth, and has in his former estimates of the annual yield come very near the facts, now estimates that the crop of 1877 will amount to 4,750,000 bales. He says he has never known a season more favorable than this in all its bearings over the entire cotton growing districts of our country. The time was unusually prolonged, with less than the ordinary complaint of worms, caterpillars, rust, etc.

Speaker Randall recently discharged a House of Representatives door-keeper from Massachusetts named O'Leary, whereupon Mr. Leopold Morse, the Boston clothing dealer, who represents the Fourth Massachusetts District, intimated to Mr. Randall that if he wanted himself and Frank Jones to continue their large contributions for Democratic campaign expenses at Philadelphia and elsewhere it would be as well to reinstate Mr. O'Leary, and Mr. Randall did so.

Senator Gordon of Georgia was shot in the cheek at the battle of Sharpsburg. The wound healed up and the cheek is as good as ever it was, but the bullet—oh, immortal gods, did you ever see such a hopeless wreck as that bullet?—Hawkeye.

NEW MAGAZINES.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for February contains a number of articles of special interest and merit. With the Russians in Bulgaria" is the first of a series of papers, by Edward King, describing the seat of war, the Russian army and its leaders, and the Bulgarian people from personal observation, with illustrations from original drawings by an artist of the London Graphic. Alfred T. Bacon's account of Syracuse, which forms the concluding paper of his Month in Sicily, and Professor James A. Harrison's Glimpses of Sweden, are equally vivid and instructive, and are copiously illustrated. Hinting in France, by L. Lejeune, shows a knowledge of the country and its sports such as no foreigner can possess, and contains many graphic descriptions and amusing anecdotes. Simpler, but no less striking, is A Reminiscence of the First Iron-Clad Fight, by an officer on board the ill-fated Congress, whose account of one of the most dramatic incidents of modern warfare is a valuable contribution to the history of our civil war. Thirty-five Years of Soundings is the punning title of a paper by a deaf contributor, who has made a close study of his infirmity, and who relates his experience in a way that must engage the sympathy of all his readers. There are several capital stories in the number, and the Gossip is fresh and entertaining.

The February WIDE AWAKE opens with a jolly "Snow-storm" as frontispiece, accompanied by a poem from Miss Farman, the editor. Following is another story of out-of-door life, "Jack's First Contract," by Kate Tannatt Woods. "The Child Tellers of Boston Streets," by Emma E. Brown, gives us a glimpse of news-boys' life. "Why Julia Changed her Mind" is a naive little school-room story by Mrs. W. E. Bryant. "True Blue," Mrs. Bell's capital Minnesota serial is vital with breezy, out-of-doors life. The sixteenth of the "Poets' Homes" papers gives six pages of interesting matter about Walt Whitman, with three excellent portraits taken at different periods of life. "The Boston School for Deaf Mutes" is very interesting, and "Seeing the Pope," by Miss Alfred Macy, is a very timely article. "The Tables turned," "Naming the Dolly," and the second adventure of "Little Miss Muslin" are each funny poems, finely illustrated. "Lucelet's Anger-storm," by Ella Farman, the editor, is well worth reading. Lilla Farman Editor; D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers.

State Temperance Convention.

The several temperance organizations, the temperance workers, and all the friends of temperance in Maine, are invited to meet in state convention, at Granite Hall, in Augusta, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 23d and 24th, commencing at 10 o'clock on Wednesday.

The temperance cause was never more prosperous in the State than now, for which we should be most profoundly grateful. Still there are interests and questions which will arise and our action in regard to them, may be of great importance to the prohibitory law? Shall we protest against granting license to sell intoxicating liquors, to the city of Bangor? Shall we seek for any more stringent penalties to be inflicted upon persons found intoxicated? These and other important questions will doubtless demand the attention of the convention.

Let there be a general rally. The usual reduction of fare on the railroads may be expected.

J. T. K. & Co's Citizens Arctic Winter Fireman & Police Pants.

These goods are made from Pure Picked American Wool, 15 ounce Government regulation standard, double indigo dyed, and thoroughly shrunk. They are lined throughout with a soft quilted flannel, which has the advantage of being a preventive of Rheumatism, and makes them impervious to water. They are sewed with waxed thread, Bobbin Linen, which makes them mouth sewed stronger. They contain five pockets, three being made of English doeskin, and equipped by shape for pistol, handcuffs and billy, the pockets are reached by a new patent method of facilitating access and keep them free of the dirt, and are stayed in every part with Irish tow drill. The buttons are all stayed on with patent leather, which never will drop from pull or jerk, and all the pockets are double edged and bound also with Holland Linen. Nothing can exceed the strength and durability of these goods.

Boston, Sept. 19th, 1876. Messrs. J. T. K. & Co., Gents—I have examined your Blue Pilot Cloths and have found them to be good, sound, honest cloths, pure Blue to stand, and strong enough to stand the extraordinary strain of 16 pounds to the quarter inch. Yours truly,

W. HEDDON, (Expert) 107 Summer Street.

Lots I supply for U. S. Cutters and clothing for the British Government at the Tower of London and Royal Woolwich Cutting Establishment, and have received the celebrated Gold Medal and Diploma for the best Cloth, and have never had an order in the United States. And British Government contracts, and by which I can show you the best.

Provided, R. I., Nov. 1st, 1877. Messrs. J. T. K. & Co.—Gent—A pair of your Government Pants I received from Officer D. [illegible] who has worn a pair for nearly four months constantly, and they look well still, top [illegible].

S. G. ADDAMS, Agt.,
Room 2, No. 71 Westminster Street.

We have subscribed a portion of the above Pants, and shall recommend to the Police force of Providence, Providence, R. I., and they have given satisfaction in every instance.

Messrs. J. T. K. & Co.—I could not dispose of your Police Pants, as I have worn your Medical Pants, and they are the best I ever wore. I have made up that I have suffered with for many years, has not left the pain. I glory in the Government standard, and prominent among good the [illegible].

DAVID L. WENTWORTH,
State Detective.

The goods are to be ordered by an agent for any person requiring them, and forward to Providence, Boston, and Portland, Maine, or to the Manufacturers, J. T. K. & Co., Providence, R. I.

These articles used in making the flannels, with which these Pants are lined, are valuable as a disinfectant, and make them extremely warm, and have given a number of persons, who have worn a pair of them, relief from the wearer of much consequence.

For Lumbago, Neuralgia and Cramps, lamps on the chest, slightly warm, and [illegible] that come in contact with the parts affected, and [illegible] Rheumatism, and [illegible] per [illegible]. Price, $7.50 [illegible], and $8.00 per [illegible]. In ordering, give waist and leg measure.

Also, regular [illegible] Pants, made of same goods, [illegible] with medicated flannels, $6.50 value [illegible] measure immediately, under the name of [illegible] Pants.
